The Outlook in Congress the Coming Week.

The Result Largely Dependent on the Republican Caucus Today.

Pressure for Financial Legislation Becoming Too Great to Be Resisted.

New Process for the Manufacture of Sorghum Sugar Perfected by the Agricultural Department-The Results.

By Telegraph to The Times.
WASHINTON, Dec. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] What will take place in the Senate this week is largely dependent upon the Republican caucus tomorrow or Tuesday. Tomorrow will be the twelfth day of the pendency of the Elections Bill, and the probabilities are unless the caucus decides to take a decided step toward its speedy termination the pressure for financial legislation will become too great to be re-

In the House the Reapportionment Bul will be called up Tuesday. There will be no concerted opposition on the part of the Democrats, and the fight which, at the beginning of the session was generally predicted, will not come off. Mr. Cutcheon purposes to call up the Army Appropriation Bill at the first Army Appropriation Bill at the first opportunity. The friends of the Shipping Bill have been assured of a friendly disposition on the part of the Rules Committee toward their measure, and it is possible the Reapportionment Bill may be disposed of quickly enough to permit the Shipping Bill to come up this week. The Dorsey Bill to reduce the compulsory deposit of bonds by national banks, and to authorize the lasue of circuisting notes, etc., will be issue of circulating notes, etc., will be urged for immediate consideration.

SORGHUM SUGAR.

A New Process Discovered by the WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] The annual report of the chief of the chemical division of the Agricultural Department contains count of a process recently perfected at the department, as the result of experiments in the chemical laboratory, with reference to the manufacture of sorghum sugar. The report of the chemist recites some of the various of the chemist recites some of the various of the chemist recites although a found in the seconomic manufacture of augar from sorghum, and indicates that the solution of the question will be found in some process which would separate as nearly as possible the gummy amorphus bodies from the juice without precipitating the sugar. The known property of alcohol to produce precipitation in the juice was made use of in the further study of this problem; not only has the removal of fected at the department, as the result use of in the further study of this problem; not only has the removal of the gums been effected by the process evolved during these experiments, but it has been shown that this can be effected at a cost comparatively trifling by comparison with the results obtained. The article used in precipitation can be almost wholly recovered by subsequent distillation. Another feature is that the gummy substance separated by the process is itself fermentable, yielding almost half its weight in alcohol. In order that the new method may become possible, the report suggests the necessity for the report suggests the necessity for the modification of the reveaue laws, so as to allow the preparation of alcohol used in the process to be carried on without tax, to be made under bond by the manufacturer that it be used only for this purpose. The chemist claims substantially an increase in the yield of sugar per thousand gallons of juice from an average of about ten thousand pounds to an average of over e thousand nine hundred and which enters into the new process.

The President Will Send a Special Message to Congress.

Silver Bullion to Be Purchased and Notes Issued to the Amount of National Bank Notes

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—[By the Associated Press.] The Herald says: 'The man who is not happy after tomorrow is a hopeless case." This phrase is a fair sample of the sentiment of the solid men who frequented the corridors of the Windsor Hotel last night. Some of them were railroad magnates who are here to attend the great meeting at the house of J. Pierrepont Morgan today, but a goodly number were men whose feelings are not apt to get the better of them. Whether this note of hopefulnes was due more to the proximity of London gold than to the visit of Secretary Windom would be difficult to decide, but it is pretty safe to assume that both of these favoring auspices had much to do with the changed pices had much to do with the changed aspect of the future.

It was said on the very best authority when Secretary Windom left for Washingfon yesterday it was understood that immediate steps will be taken by the Government to carry out his suggestions for the purchase of 12,000,000 ounces of silver bullion now afloat in the country. In addition to the regular monthly purchase of 4,500,000 ounces it is also intended to procure for the secretary power to buy more silver and to issue notes for these purchases to the amount of $1,500,000 a month, the amount of the mouthly retirement of amount of the monthly retirement of national bank notes. Of couse, it is pretty generally agreed that the sur-plus of silver bullion afloat is much in excess of 13,000,000 ounces, but the excess of 13,000,000 ounces, but the purchase of this amount by the Government will, it is believed, very materially assist to relieve the stringency. The meeting today at the residence of Mr. Morgan will be devoted principally to an informal talk over the preliminary agreement. It is asserted that no decisive steps to ratify this will be taken until after the holidays. There is likely, however, to be a hitch in the proceedings, owing to the dislike of the Chicago and Northwestern directors to the arbitration clause in the preliminary agreement. The President to Send a Special Message to Congress.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—[By the Associated Press.] A special dispatch from Washington to the Times says: An official holding a high position in the Treasury Department, who does not care to be quoted, is authority for the statement that President Harrison will tomorrow send to Congress a special message on the silver question. In this message, it is said, he will ading for its basis the increased purchase of silver.

It is stated on unquestioned authority that the President has actually drafted the message, and in fact submitted the message, and in fact sub-mitted it to his advisors at the last meeting of the Cabinet, but the silver senators are of the opinion that the message will not go to Con-gress until after another Cabinet they must get down on their knees before being allowed to pass. When the Americans indignantly refused to comply with the demand a bloody riot ensued, in which knives, clubs and stones were freely used. After great difficulty the foreigners were driven off. CHINESE POOL.

The Rooms Crowded All Day Yes-terday—A Growing Evil.

The Chinese pool games are still main-tained, and the patronage that they receive is something astonishing. Yesterday after-noon the rooms where the various tables are running were crowded at all times, and the number of players was only limited by the cap city of the room itself. Old men, young men, white men, China-

Old men, young men, white men, Chinamen, negroes, boys not yet out of their teens comprised the smatter gamblers who frequented the places.

In the Pleo House several store rooms on the north side, facing the Pl-za, have been leased to Chinamen, and here one will find the game in operation at all hours. Yesterday afternoon, among the parties who were there was a prominent county officer, who was watching the play, and apparently taking great interest in it.

Councilman Summerland has introduced in the Council a resolution which directs the City Attorney to draw an ordinance which will have the effect of abolishing these games. There seems to be some hesitancy about enacting a municipal regulation of the character suggested, for fear it will not be constitutional. Any way something should be done to eradicate this evil.

THE RAILROADS.

Dangers to Brakemen on Freight Trains.

THE OLD-FASHIONED COUPLING

Every Year-Why Modern Improvements Are Not Adopted-Notes.

Quite a number of trainmen have taken exception to a little item in The Times the other day in connection with railroad accidents, in which it was stated that with the numerous appliances for coupling cars, etc., there would be fewer accidents if the men ware more careful. The boys say that it is

A walk around the yards and freight de-pots in this city will soon convince any one who will take the trouble that there is more pots in this city will soon convince any one who will take the trouble that there is more business done in Los Angeles than any city of its size on the coast. The depot warehouses are full of freight of all kinds, and hundreds of freight cars standing in the yards waiting to be unloaded. Railroad men say that both the east and west bound business is far ahead of anything they have ever known is this country. This not only shows that the population of Southern California is growing rapidly, but it is a convincing fact that business men are disposed to show more confidence in the country than they had a coupe of years are.

This fact should convince railroad builders that now is the time for them to branch out and give every section a quick market for their products.

General Freight and Passenger Agent Hynes of the Santa Fé, who has just returned from a trip to the East, states that the future for Southern California, from a business standpoint, was never so bright as it is at present. He conversed with a number of people ducing his visit East, and they take more interest in this section of country than they did even in boom times. Last year they were wild about Northern Oregon and Washington, but that craze has left them, and they have again turned their eyes to Southern California.

reached this city in their private car last evening and will hold a session and take evidence in the United States Marshai's office this morning at 10 o'clock. They will probably remain in this city one day and will then go to San Diego, where they will wind up their labors on the coast.

Senator Squire left the committee at San Francisco to return to Washington. The committee is now composed of Congressmen Leheback of New Jersey and Stump of Maryjand, in charge of Charles B. The Exclusion Act expires in 1892, and some steps will have to be taken before that time, and this committe was sent out with instructions to gather up all the evidence and information obtainable on the subject. So far they have taken evidence at San Francisco, Portland, Or., Port Townsend and varieus other piaces up North. At Port Townsend they found that the law has been violated in a most astonishing manner, and hundreds of Chinamen have been smuggled into the country, as well as large quantities of opium.

The gentlemen will get through with their work as soon as possible, so that they can reach Washington for Christmas.

THE EAST SIDE.

The Beneficial Effects of the Recent Rain-Sawer Work.
The recent rain is doing its work in a very satisfactory way. Vegetation has already begun to show itself, and it is quite perceptible on the side hills. The farmers are stirring the ground making preparation to sow the seed, and another good rain will make the barren-looking fields present a beautiful green. The East Side hills are beautiful green. The East Side hills are beginning to be attractive. The country from the top of the Sierra Madres to the sea is in full view from the summit of these hills, and by a fifteen-minutes' walk from the cable line in East Los Angeles the observer can view the most wonderful country the sun ever shone upon.

The great combination of railroads has not seemingly affected the Terminal railroad work on the East-side levee. A large number of men and teams are hard at work banking up the levee on the outside proparatory to laying the track.

The Mozart and Workman street sewer will soon be put in. The first dirt was thrown on Thursday and the work will be rapidly pushed to the finish. Then the East Side, like other portions of the city, will have some money buried in the ground without any perceptible benefit derived therefrom. A sewer only open at the upper end is something like building schoolhouses where there are no children.

NUMEROUS SIDE DOORS OPEN

Customers Provided with Latch Keys-Only One Arrest Made, but Other Complaints Will Be Sworn Out.

'Sunday saloon closing" was not a brilllant success yesterday. The front doors of the various places were shut fast enough, and even locked, but no one who wanted a drink was compelled to do without it, nor was it necessary to go beyond the city limits was it necessary to go beyond the city limits to assuage one's thirst. There is but little question but that almost every saloon in the city obeyed the law the first Sunday it went into effect, but yesterday the case was different, and, as stated above, quite a thriving business was done.

Two or three days ago Chief Glass was

Two or three days ago Chief Glass was notified that a locksmith on First street was making a large number of pass-keys for the use of the Louvre saloon, on Main street, and a little quiet investigation developed the fact that it was the intention of the saloon man to furnish his customers with keys, so that they would have no difficulty in gratifying their appetites, despite the Sunday law. The chief, acting on this "pointer" secured several of the keys himself, and thinking that there might be others who would play the same game, engaged several "spotters" for Sunday. The anti-saloon people also had their doubts, it appears, about the sincertity of the saloon men in their professions about wishing to see the law enforced, and a number of them volunteered for "secret service" work vesterday. Another suspicious circumstance was the fact that the saloon men, late Saturday night, notified the newspapers that they wanted to see the law enforced, and said they would coöperate with the authorities. use of the Louvre saloon, on Main street,

ONLY ONE ARREST MADE.

Only one arrest was made yesterday, however. Early yesterday morning Officer however. Early yesterday morning Officer Hawley noticed a number of men about the Louvre saloon, on Main street, and having been warned about the "key racket," kept his eye on the place. He finally saw three men enter the place, and following them in, discovered the barkeeper, A. W. Kelling, on duty, and three glasses of whisky on the counter. As the officer entered, one of the men remarked "the jie's up," but tried to run a bind by asking the officer to drink. Carrying out his instructions, the officer did so, and placed Kelling under arrest, taking him to the station, where he deposited $50 for his appearance. In the atternoon-the grouper of the saloon called on Chief Glass to enter complaint against Hawley for drinking while on duty, but was considerably taken back when informed that the officer was merely carrying out his instructions, and had immediately reported the case himself at headquarters.

Among the clear, forcible, practical religious writers of the present, there is no one who more directly reaches the heart and instructs the understanding than the author of this little book. As we read he touches our spiritual vision, and we feel how blind we have been to the great truths of Christianity which he makes plain. He has a wonderful power for spiritual awakening, yet he is calm, direct and unswayed by passion. He compells the attention of his readers by his sincerity and that strong common sense which vitalizes his words and arrests and holds the attention.

"Pax Vobiscum" is the second of a series of which "The Greatest Tsing in the World" was the first. It is a series which the Christian public will wish long-continued. Already his first book has been translated into several languages, and gone out like an apostle of the truth into many foreign lands. The Christian public will not fail to give the present volume a like measure of appreciation.

There is, perhaps, no writer who of late has been so much the rage in literary Boston as Ibsen. As more than half of all the deaths which occur every year are caused by consumption, if Dr. Koch's claim is true, it is the greatest discovery of the nineteenth century. But there seems to be some doubt as to whether it can be made practicable in all cases, while in every case it is certain to be a very expensive cure and o e that can only be indulged in by the very wealth est.

In the course of his remarks upon the subject, however, Prof. Kooh makes a most wonderful statement which is as follows: "Alloundi is a food in consumption." He does not say that it is a temporary and, but an absolute for d. as aning the life, building up the strength at drestoring the health. This is a most important statement and proves beyond q estion the great value of aicolo in the treatment of disease. It should be remembered, however, that alcohol is never taken in its natural form and that whiskey is the fine-t manner in which alcohol is ever combined. Even then it must be pure beyond question, or it injures instead of aids, it is the possession of this quality of purely and its mei clinal power which has made Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey o imm asurabl superior to any other known whiskey in the world. The entire biography proper is here, and with it a copious analysis of his work from the time when, as an apothecary's apprentice, he pestled medicines and turned out patriotic poetry in the small seaport town of Grimstad to the era of "The Doll's House" and the other doctrinal dramas which to some critics suggest themselves as epoch-making and great, and to others merely as tedious. The Norwegian biographer is one of those who regard ibsen as an epoch-maker. He calls attention to the rush of young German playwrights in the Ibsen footsteps, and intimates that the analytical drama has come to stay, and perhaps steps, and intimates that the analytical drama has come to stay, and perhaps to overwhelm. Ibsen at 62 is a man in robust health, not tall, but imposing, with powerful chest and a head to match, a gaze of steadiness conveyed through spectacles, compressed lips, heavy eyebrows, belligerently flying whiskers, thick upstanding hair and other leatures of resolution, including a brow that is so powerful that the biographer is tempted to liken it to the forehead idealized in Zeus Otricolis. Chief Glass was seen last evening, and when asked how the Sunday law was working, replied very well, but it would be better next Sunday. WHY "SOMETHING"

A few days ago THE TIMES printed an editorial under the title of "Grow Something," which has been favorably commented on and quite generally reprinted in our exchanges.

It has also called out a letter from W. H. White of this city, which contains much food for thought, but, being too long for our crowded columns, cannot be printed in full. We take occasion, however, to voice the correspondent's views on the subject by copious quotations from his article.

After commending the editorial referred to, he says that the advice to 'grow something" is especially good when applied to land-owners:

when applied to land-owners:
But as this can only be accepted by owners or refuers of the soil, it presupposes certain conditions that do not exist among a very large class of the inhabitants of California. * * * While all are anxious for better times, all know that to "grow something" means land to grow it en, and that the proper inducements must be held out to the growers or workers in the field, or the desired boom or revival of business and growth of the city will not materialize.

The correspondent them come on a

The correspondent then goes on a length to show that good tillable land, with water, is too high to enable the grower of ordinary farm products to reap the revenue due for his toil. He also takes a dig at the owners of big ranches who demand extortionate rentals for the land, or high prices if sold. The writer says further:

But as soon as a producer becomes possessor of a few acres, he has the fancy price he pays for them taxed to their full vatue, and as he proceeds to plant and produce something, the taxes are piled up on his growing crops as though he were guilty of a criminal offense. Thus the expenses of the country are borne by the poor, while the rich are made richer.

Mr. White says further; that this idea of high values of lead in this idea of high prices of land in Southern California 1s abroad in the East, and that buyers and would-be growers of something, are mostly en route for other States with the little money they are able to command.

As a remedy for the practice of keeping big ranches intact, the writer says:

I see no better way out than for the State of Caitfornia to tax every acre of land held in big ranches to the full extent of valuation set upon it by the holder; then you would very soon see things move in the right direction. When the laborer is encouraged by the proper inducements, the pianting of something in California soil will go ahead with such strides as the oldest inhabitant has never yet witnessed. But this "dog in the manger" business will no doubt continue until some new political alliance shall take the tax question in hand as well as the limitation of holdings. For instance, how long would the 44,000 acres of land held by Messrs. Jones and Baker between Los Angeles and the Pacific Ocean, remain wild and unsold if they had to pay a tax on it at the rate of $300 per acre?—the average price they place on said lands.

That there is some truth in this goes without saying-the man who has a small cultivated ranch has it taxed to the maximum extent, while on the other hand the man who has his thousands of broad acres lying untilled and unfruited, pays the minimum.

a direct tax on enterpris This is and industry, and the whole theory is wrong. Raw land, like cultivated land of equal fer-tility, should be taxed at its actual value, and improvements should be taxed separately at their value. With this state of affairs inaugurated. our injunction to "grow something" would undoubtedly be heeded by many who are now debarred from doing so them. At the same time there opportunities for the rental and purchase of lands at reasonable rates all about us, and the man who really wants a chance at Mother Earth with his flashing plow and his trusty hoe can certainly get it in Los Angeles county.

THE FUTURE OF WARFARE.

In the North American Review for December, Capt. E. L. Zalinski has an interesting article on The Future of Warfare. He disputes the argument of those who assert that improvements in war appliances will, ere long, render war impossible, but believes that these improvements will tend to shorten wars. While making greater loss of life possible in a given time, they will reduce materially the aggregate of losses and suffering.

Weapons used in warfare have un dergone a great change during the past few years. The rifles which are now being generally adopted are all of magazine type, and of a caliber varying from 0.302 to 0.315 inch. The bullet weighs less than one-half that used during our civil war, the charge of black powder used at present is 25 per cent greater, and the velocity imparted is about double. The course of the bullet through the air is less curved, making the danger-space for any given range much greater. The use of the magazine rifle, permitting from five to eleven rounds to be fired in as many seconds, enables the delivery of a terrible fusillade at the final critical moment, which must render the success of an attack upon intrenched troops well nigh impossible. Then there are the smokeless powders, which will greatly modify the conditions of future warfare. Capt. Zalinski believes that successful action will in the future rest, more than heretofore, on the subordinate officers, including the non-commissioned officers, who will have to be most carefully selected and educated. To them will have to be given a great degree of consideration and authority. in order that they may command the the fullest obedience and control in time of action. Discipline, while in the field, will have to be Draconian. Mounted troops, the writer or the article believes, will be used in much larger numbers than heretofore, for covering and observation and to surprise the enemy by attacks upon his flanks or lines of communication. They will, however, not be armed in European armies, but with magazine carbines and revolvers. Artillery more important part than heretofore in deciding the fate of battles. Range finders and telescopic sights will be necessary adjuncts of this arm of the service. With such improvements, greater accuracy of fire will be obtained | them.

Wars will not be so picturesque in Wars will not be so picturesque in future as they have been.

Batties will no longer present the brilliant and kaleidoscopic pictures of the past. The uniforms for service will be of the least visible colors, all conspicuous ones being discarded. Gray and brown will predominate. Arms and accourtements will be browned and justreless. The pomp and circumstances of war will be relegated to the parade ground in the piping times of peace.

While it may be true that all these modern improvements will not render war impossible, yet we are justified in hoping that the terrible cost in human life, property and money which is certain to attend the declaration of war today, will aid in causing nations to reflect and deliberate more carefully before they take the final irrevocable step.

A WASHINGTON special reports that Senator Sherman, when interviewed on the financial situation, said that if the present standards of money can be maintained he will regard the situation as extremely hopeful. He insists that the national banks be given facilities to maintain their circulation until the bonds are all paid off, when some other system must be devised. He believes United States notes will be the tulure currency, properly secured by reserves. . The free coinage of silver means the immediate demonetization of gold, and the United States would then have a standard constantly increasing in volume but lessening in demand. He thinks there is a hopeful prospect of an international agree on silver, because of the universal feeling that neither gold nor silver is abundant enough to form the basis of money.

COMPLAINT is made that a number of saloons kept their back doors open yesterday. Judging by the experience of other cities, the police will have to exercise great vigilance to overcome this method of evading the law. If, however, a few examples are made at the start, and the saloon-keepers convinced that the authorities mean business the law-breakers will soon become discouraged. Liquor-dealers who have no rear entrances to their saloons will doubtless aid in breaking up the practic.

Stormy Scenes at Parnell Meetings Yesterday.

Serious Conflicts Between the Opposing Factions Narrowly Averted.

Anti-Parnell Gatherings at Which the Leader Was Scored.

Vigorous Protest by the Russian Press Against Outside Interference Regarding the Jews.

By Telegraph to The Times.
DUBLIN, Dec. 14.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Parnell addressed a meeting of 500 people at Tullyrone today. His speech was mainly a repetition of his utterances in previous speeches. It was delivered mid a running commentary of cries, such as "Down with Judas Healy, to hell with Hennessy, the Zulu King," etc.,

from certain of his hearers.

From Tullyrone Parnell and his drove to Freshford, where Parnell addressed another meeting, referring during his speech to the seceders as "miserable gutter sparrows, whom he had pushed out of obscurity and given a better chance than he gave himself." While talking Parnell was interrupted by a gathering of his was interrupted by a gathering of his opponents, who shouted "To hell with the adulterer." A fight would inevitably have followed but for the presence of the police. Parnell closed his day's work with an address at Urlingford, where he spends the night.

This was responded to by the anti-Parnellites, and the cheering was kept up by the two factions for fully an hour, making it impossible for the speakers to be heard. Father Humphreys and others tried hard to pacify the opposing crowds, but in spite of their efforts stones were thrown and sticks used freely, and a serious conflict was averted only by the final withdrawal of the Parnellites. After speeches were made, a resolu-tion was carried in support of McCar-

At a stormy Nationalist convention in Newry, resolutions were adopted strongly denouncing Parnell and the Freeman's Journal, and calling for the resignation of Justin Huntley Mc-Carthy, who represents Newry in Parliament, because of his having sup-

At a large meeting at Yonghal, at which Canon Keller presided, resolutions commending Parnell were adopted.

The Garrick-on-Suir Board of Guardians have rescinded the vote of want of confidence in Parnell.

There was a race between the opposing parties to catch the electors at Freshford. Davitt and Sir John Pope Hennessy reached that place just before the celebration of mass. The priest, however, decided that mass could wait, and messengers were dispatched to beat up the people. Forty minutes saw a crowd collected in the market place headed by Father Shortall. At the same moment, a body of Parnellites arrived, headed priest. The Parnellites however, injured with the Parnellites arrived, usadout Constant of the Parnellites, however, joined with the Parnellites in their meeting, railway cinched, because it would punish Mr. Huntington; and Stow, who was fired by the railway in 1885, would regard it as a great victory if he could go back into the service of the railway, thus vindicating himself and downing all the adherents of Huntington, who criticised him in the campaign. He would be "a bigger man than old Grant," for he would the have Huntington and Stanford both under his thumb, and as sole proprietor of a Legislature, could run things as the saw fit.

When a second appeal was being made by Davitt, Father O'Shea said: "Friends, let us hear Davitt; I don't agree with him, but I respect him from the bottem of my heart." The whole scene was characteristic of the impulsive Irish characteristic of the impulsive Irish race. There was no disorder, and after the speech-making ended the whole crowd filed quietly into the church, where mass was celebrated. In a speech at Killarny Healy said: "Parnell wanted to make men like Dillon, O'Brien and Sexton a holocaust on the altar of his lusts." Healy accused Parnell of prostituting the funds for evicted tenants to employ hireling lays to break his opponents' skull.

At Westport, County Mayo, today, Parnell and his followers were denounced from the altar, In many other Catholic churches similar denunciations were uttered. CROP STATISTICS.

The Orange Yield for the Past Season.

VERY FAVORABLE SHOWING

The Product of Los Angeles County Will Approximate 2750 Car-loads-Dried Fruit Shipments-Canned Goods.

According to estimates, the orange crop of Los Angeles county for the present season will approximate 2750 carloads. This is above the crop of a year ago. Accurate statistics show that about 1700 carloads of the county of the oranges will be produced in the following ocalities: In the San Gabriel and Alhambra districts, 500 cars; in the Azusa and Giendora districts, 130 cars; in the Pomona district, 148 cars; in the Pasadena district, 300 cars; in the Los Angeles district, 316 cars; in the in the Los Angeles district, 316 cars; in the Downey district, 107 cars; in the Rivera district, 200 cars.

Shipments of dried fruit for the year aggregate about six million pounds. All told, about one million and eight hundred thousand pounds of canned goods have been exported, not to speak of 2,100,000 pounds of honey, 1,000,000 pounds of nuts, 6 000,000 pounds of potatoes. 8,000,000 pounds of beans, 3,000,000 pounds of wine, 4,000,000 pounds of wool and 7,000,000 pounds of vegetables.

pounds of potatoes, 8,000,000 pounds of beans, 3,000,000 pounds of wine, 4,000,000 pounds of wool and 7,000,000 pounds of vegetables.

Conservative estimates place the entire crop of the county at about 40 per cent. Increase on the above figures given.

During the past year the number of trees in this county has been increased 60 per cent. A recent enumeration places the number of trees in this county at 10,365,375. Of this number 12,629 acres are planted to deciduous trees, while the remaining acreage is planted to citrus fruits.

For the coming year the outlook is most promising; in fact, it was never better. The orchards of this county are young, and each year their product increases, as well as the income to the producers of this county, 40 per cent, of the mortgages on farms in the county have been paid during the year, and it is estimated that a corresponding amount of mortgages will be paid during the next twelve months.

The raising of winter vegetables for shipment East has lately become quite general, and it is anticipated that during the coming three months large quantities will be sent out.

Already string beans, green peas, tomatoes and peppers are being shipped, and as near as can be estimated three million pounds will be shipped during the months of January and February.

"Senator" Crane Gives Advice on Play-writing.

"ESMERALDA" NEXT THURSDAY

Rival Queens of Opera Coming-The Two Emmas-Mather in "Joan of Arc"-Costly Cos-

"Some actors," says Mr. Crane, modestly, "doubtless have no special faculty or desire to aid an author in this manner, and some of my own acquaintances, as to whose histrionic talents there can be only one opinion, and that a most favorable one, make it a point to leave the construction and writing of a play entirely to the author. If it suits them exactly, well and good; if not, even though the slightest judicious alteration would render it fit for their purpose, they seem unwilling or unable to make the necessary suggestions. That the loss is theirs, I must confess I am convinced, and it is in no small degree to loss is theirs, I must confess I am convinced, and it is in no small degree to this habit of mind on the part of actor and manager combined that the native American drama owes much of its stunted development."

Having accounted in this way for the deplorable condition of the native American drama, Mr. Crane then proceeds to the practical application of his remarks, and advises the dramitist, young or inexperienced, to endeavor to gain the assistance and coöperation of an intelligent actor in the preparation of his plays.

gain the assistance and cooperation of his plays.

It is hardly likely that "Senator" Crane will be able to respond to the numerous appeals that will be made to his good nature by the many "young or inexperienced" native American dramatists who are pining for recognition and assistance; but his suggestion opens up a field of prospective employment for the disengaged Thespian whose name is legion, and whose intelligence is always presumed. We may now expect to see the "leading heavy," the "juvenile" and even the "general utility" person advertise themselves not only as "at liberty," but also as collaborators ready to assist aspiring dramatists, and point them out the way to fame and fortune for a moderate pecuniary compensation.

Margaret Mather made her long-expected fir t appearance in the title role of Joan of Arc at the Fifth-avenue Theater, New York, last Monday evening. The production was on a very extensive scale, and intended to be as close a copy as possible of the Paris representation in which Sara Bernhardt figured. Miss Mather ought to do well in her new role. She proved herself an athlete of uncommon courses every time she made that acrobatic age every time she made that acrobatic fall down stairs as "Juliet," and now, as "Joan of Arc," she appears on the stage clad in full armor and seated astride a Barbary steed in the scene representing the attack on Orleans.

The mention of "Juliet" suggests The mention of "Juliet" suggests the fact that Adelaite Moore is on her way to this coast heading a company which is presenting Shakespeare's tragedy with considerable success. Miss Moore was at Denver in the early part of this month, and will appear at the Bush-street theater in San Francisco on the 5th of January. Music and Drama is responsible for the statement that the lady is only 25 years of age, and that she has played "Juliet" oftener and is more closely "Juliet" oftener and is more closely identified with that character than any other actress living. The same authority says that her recent performances of that character for fifty consecutive nights at the Globe Theater, London, is the longest run of the play, with one exception, on record. Miss Moore is coming to Los Angeles, of course.

The Witch with Marie Hubart Frohman as its star; is capturing the critics of cold New England right and left. Judging from all accounts, young Mrs. Frohman is that rare and lovely article—an actress born, not made by elecution and the dressmaker. In certain scenes she is said to be reminiscent of Modjeska, and particular attention is paid to her beautiful stage presence.—|Music and Drama.

The only theatrical event in town this week will be the benefit performance to be given by the Owl Dramatic Club on Thursday night at the Grand Operahouse, The piece, a four act comedy-drams entitled Esmeralda, is one of strong domestic interest and has achieved great popularity wherever it has been given. It represents the sudden rise from poverty to great wealth of an old couple who have lived all their lives on an unproductive farm. The discovery of a vein of iron ore on their land makes them rich. The woman is ambitious of distinction. They go to Paris, taking with them their only daughter, little Esmeralda, who accompanies them much against her will, leaving a rustic lover behind. The lover follows them to Paris, in a way possible only in plays, and is made The lover follows them to rars, in a way possible only in plays, and is made desperate at finding that the mother has almost completed her plan of marrying "Esmeralda" to a Frenchman with a title. A fine scene ensues, where the girl, hitnerto meek and submissive, throws off the chains of submissive, throws off the chains of subjection and openly rebels at her mother's programme. There is also an excellent light comedy under plot, containing some of the best dialogue of the piece. Everything finally ends happily, as it should in all well-constructed dramas, the tears are dried and sunshine appears after rain. The full cast of the play appears in another column. The Ladies' Benevolent Society is the beneficiary of the occasion. The box office for sale of seats will be open at the Operahouse tomorrow morning. The usual prices will prevail.

The valuable essays on topics connected with the drama and the stage, appearing regularly in the New York Dramatic Mirror have not only established a new departure in theatrical journalism, but have also gained for the paper in which they appear a literary reputation of an enviable kind. The contributors in each case have been people who possessed full information on the subjects they treated, and their remarks, while necessarily condensed, have been timely and interesting.

The latest paper is one by W. H. Crane, the comedian, who writes on "The Relations of Actor and Dramatist." As Mr. Crane his greatest successes were polished into shape before they left the hands of such playwrights as Bronson Howard, David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfield, his views are naturally worth having. Mr. Crane thinks that if the playwright would be absolutely homest he would admit that in nine cases to actors who have collaborated with him, either admittedly or otherwise. He gives illustrations from his own experience showing how he helped out Bronson Howard in writing The Henrictia, and the public also learns for the first time that the respective claims on behalf of Lloyd and Rosenfeld to the fact that it was Mr. Crane who was the master mind in suggestion, as he master mind in suggestion as he master mind in suggesti

At the production of the burlesque entitled Pippins at a New York theater recently, according to the Dramatic Mirror, a startling novelty was introduced in the noble art of skirt dancing, in the second act. The artists chosen for this terpsichorean treat appeared in divided skirts, discarding one-half of the skirt in order to display whatever nature had given them in the matter of anatomical shapeliness. ness.

Emma Abbott's new Worth and Felix wardrobe beats all. For his share of it Worth is said to have received $24,000, and Felix $18,000. There are ever thirty and Felix $18,000. There are over thirty robes and dresses, and a Felix mantle that weighs 150 pounds and can only be worn by the aid of two pages, and then only for three minutes. It is a mass of bead-work, reflecting every hue of the prism, and is the most gorgeous article of dress ever seen on any stage. Some prism, and is the most gorgeous article of dress ever seen on any stage. Some of the Abbott dresses cost enormously. An "Anne Boleyn" dress cost $3500; a "Rose of Castile" dress cost $5000; the "Ernani" dresses also cost in the thousands, and the "Romeo and Juliet" dresses are beautiful beyond description. Worth himself said he never created such dresses before, and so did Felix, only in July last.—[Music and Drama.

The sale of seats for the Abbott Opera Company's engagement opens this morning.

and William Cook, with his arm in a sling.
The day proved an excellent one for a run. The road as far as the Ten-Mile House was in splendid condition, from there to the springs it was rather soft and the travel hard. The San Gabriel River, not being bridged on that road, presented an obstacle not easily overcome. Hopperstead and Chapman arrived at the river first, and Hopperstead was compelled to take off his shoes and stockings and wade through, carrying Chapman on his back, a la pappoose. Next came Ward and Osgood; Ward, following the example of Hopperstead, carried Osgood across, but as there were ladies on the opposite bank he was obliged to wade through with his tights on. The balance of the party were more fortunate, as they met a man with a wagon who took them safely across, with the exception of Cook, who fell out of the wagon luto the river, and upon his reappearance reminded one of

After passing a pleasant afternoon at the springs, where they were most hospitably entertained by the proprietor, Ellis Poweli, the boys returned to Los Angeles on the 5:20 train, not-feeling at all fatigued after their long run, and well satisfied with their day's sport. It is the intention of those who participated in yesterday's run to form an outing club, which will make a feature of sports of this character.

[FASHIONABLE DRESS.

Set Out in a Room All White and Gold.

WHERE THE SEWING WOMEN SIT

On the Carpet Because the Frocks Must Have the Chairs-Some Noteworthy Dance and Promenade Gowns.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 .- Have you ever seen a fashionable trousseau in process of making? Very probably, and yet not in such manner as I shall describe. Imagine a small octagonal room lighted by a glowing electric chandelier and decorated in white and gold. In the eight corners of this room imagine eight white and gold chairs. Over ev-ery chair inagine a shimmering mass of light and delicate silk and gauze and laces, and on the floor beside it, and laces, and on the floor beside it, sitting Turkish fashion, a young sewing, woman.

This is a picture of trosseau-making in one of the most fashionable establishments. The stuffs are so costly and so easily soiled that the seamstresses are done up from head to foot in immaculate white lawn aprons, and yet with all their care are hardly permitted to touch the fabrics on which they are employed. They sit on the floor because the dainty frocks must be kept out of harm's and dust's way upon the chairs.

In the middle of the little room under the chandelier stands the modiste.

In the middle of the little room under the chandener stands the modiste, a pink-cheeked, plump little Frenchwoman, prettier than most of her nation. She talks broken English volubly. "That, madam, that ees white corded silk, ees eet not beautiful?"

It is, indeed, a novel wedding robe. The slight, pale, dark girl who is fluishing the collar, looks weary and cramped in her constrained position, but still she sews, bending over the rich stuff smilingly as women will for rich stuff similingly as women will for a wedding.

"Eet must be finished tonight, for tomorrow eet ees worn by Mees—."."

"Eet" has a faint creamy tone. If it were lifted from the folds in which it lies it would be seen to have an oldworld stateliness, simple but very charming. The standing collar is cut in deep noints that cur, outward like in deep points that curi outward like the petals of a flower. Each point is edged about with pearls, and carries a heavy drooping ostrich feather. The bodice is turned away from the throat in lapels. Each lapel is edged with bodice is timed away from the thort in lapels. Each lapel is edged with pearls and with firmy rose point lace. These follow down to the point of the long bodice and then border it till it merges in the draperies. The corsage opens in a narrow, modest V, partially filled with ostrich feathers. The elbow sleeves are very high on the shoulders and open on the inside of the arm. They have pearl and lace garnitures. The gleaming corded fabric shows to wonderful advantage in the long clinging skirt with its feather edge and its deep flounce of point lace with heading of soft criepe set with pearls. There is no hint of orange blossom or veil, yet, when the door is left ajar a minute, an inquisitive customer looks in and says: "Ah, that must be for a wedding!"

A bride's opera cloak.

Here is an opera cloak that belongs with this trousseau. It is made of white cloth, with yoke and standing collar of white velvet embroidered in outline with pale pink roses, each rose spray tied up with gold ribbons. In front the cloak falls straight and full. Christmas shoppers every day. Studywhile in the back it is plaited and cut to the figure. The sleeves have puffy rosettes on the shoulders and are long and full and unattached from the arm-holes. The collar is lined with white ostrich feathers.

Here is an evening dress of gold cloth, a soft dull cloth that looks like chamois skin. It is cut with a draped and pointed bodice, becoming a long graceful polonaise. It opens at the graceful polonaise. It opens at the throat in a very slight point in front and behind, and the points are finished with an edge of the yellow. Australian sable fur. Below the fur, which is very odd looking and at the moment very fashionable, the points are deepened by an inch-wide band of gold passementerie jeweled with turquoise. The sleeves stop at the elbows and the gold and fur border them and run up on the inside. The skirt is fur-edged, and The skirt is fur-edged, and the gold and turquoise braid is set in a Greek fret pattern about the bottom of the polonaise.

Here is another féte dress of lavender faille. Under the lights it glistens and takes a pinkish tone. It is a big splen-did blonde who crouches at its feet and adjusts the skirt that she may fasten a border of pink ostrich feathers held at intervals by great spray-like appliques of black velvet. It is just the frock that this particular blonde ought to wear. The bodice is cut in a point and is covered by a fichu of pale lavender crépe laid in platts and hanging loose, almost like a shawl. There are platted sleeves, and over the back of the chair writhes and twists a big innocent snake of the bride. It is a rich silver gray velvet, cut severely en princess, but it has a high Tudor collar made of a wide piece of rare old point de Venise and wired to stand up stiffly at the back of the neck and roll away in front over a pointed stomacher of silver satin delicately wrought with silver embrodery. The collar fronts taper to the waist and the velvet sleeves are so long that the lace cuffs reach over the hands. About the bottom of the skirt runs a wide band of sable.

At the "dancing tea" at Sherry's the other day appear a number of pretty gowns. One was a pale pink crépe de Chine. The bodice was cut a lavierge, with the decolletage formed by a lot of ittle tucks about the throat, these being held in at the waist by a beit of gold and silver embroidery. This belt itself was a very pretty thing—quite deep under the arms, but narrowing to a tiny point in front so as to give a V-shaped effect to the tucked bodice. From the point of the belt fell two long ends of the embroidery, like ribbons woven of silver and hung with frosted gold and silver sequins. The skirt was laid from waist to hem in tiny plaits and edged with the glittering ribbon. The elbow-sleeves were graceful in cut and dotted here and there with sequins.

An indefatigable dancer wore a very An indefatigable dancer wore a very pale green crépe lisse draped over gold-colored satin. The half-low bodies was edged with pink rosebuds and heath, and clusters of these flowers fluttered loose and held the gauzy folds at the waist and the floating skirt draperies. Near the bottom of the skirt the gauze was caught down upon the satin foundation by five rows of close-set gold cords, leaving a full ruche-like flounce to rise and fall with the waitz motion. The chaperon of the slim brunette held a long boa of crushed rose petals massed together, which in the pauses of the music the dancer twisted about her throat as sedulously as if she seriously expected some protection from the fragile ofnament.

At the first dance of the Colonial Dames this was a notable gown: a thick cream-white satin en princess, one side from throat to floor of the plain fabric, the other side embroidered with long sprays of meadow iris and cat tails in gold. A narrow scarflike drapery of white velvet had the effect of having been cast about the neck, partially filling in the open V of the decolletage. At the waist the velneck, partially filling in the open y of the decolletage. At the waist the vel-vet ends were knotted and then fell to the ground, ending in heavy pendants of gold. Soft white velvet bows on the bosomand waist finished this costume.

With velvet yoke.

All the social festivities thus far this winter suggest barbaric gorgeousness. Under the gaslight women of fashion look quite as much like queens of the footlights as like private individuals. All the accessories of the toilet flash with gold and gems. Purple-hearted amethysts, scintillating rubies or cool green emeralds shine from the Torreador jackets. From embroidered ribreador jackets, from embroidered ribreador jackets. reador jackets, from embroidered ribbons delicately wrought as Algerian fligree, and even from the crowns of bonnets, the backs of gloves and the insteps of silken stockings. Brocades are seen splashed with larger and larger flower patterns. The tall stalk of the tulip or the spike of the gladiolus does not satisty, but the upholstery counters are pillaged for huge peony flgures that a year ago would have been called too pronounced for curtain or portiere. It is a season of novelties, in which the wise woman feasts hereye but the indiscreet woman goes very wrong. reador jackets, from embroidered rib

The back breadths were of black velvet, which extended up each shoulder. The sides were plaited like fains on either side of the velvet front, and were slightly draped on the hips to form flat paniers. About the hips to form hat paniers. About the hem ran a rose ruching. The bodice had an odd but pretty yoke of velvet puffed in a manner dangerous to any but a slender woman. Below the yoke the waist was plaited to a point and tastened by a button. The sleeves had velvet bands at the wrists, and in the arm-holes were set assert-ive-looking standing frills. There was ive-looking standing frills. There was a Medici collar and a little velvet bonnet with bird and pompon. The shopper carried one of those odd, new umbrellas which have dangling red cherries hanging by ribbons to the cherrywood handle, and when she moved away the saleswoman followed with her eyes. Perhaps it was because the shopper was pretty, but more probably it was because the saleswoman understood her innocent little game. So many women who have nimble So many women who have nimble tingers steal with their eyes the sales-woman's Christmas novelties.

It was a straight robe of a very pale lemon-tinted velvet with a short jacket of black velvet edged with a narrow band of yellow sable fur. Two great panels of black velvet opened over the lemon-colored petticoat in a direct line of continuance with the jacket. With this costume was worn a broad hat of black velvet with white and lemon-tinted ostrich with white and lemon-tinted ostrich Threading its way through the crowded ranks of pedestrians I noticed this afternoon a dress of grayish-green and gray plaids bordered with curly astrakhan. At a recent wedding in Brooklyn a woman, oriental enough in style for Cleopatra, wore a dress of yellow-figured India crépe with girdle of rich gold passementerie and fillets of gold for the hair. With her was a matron in regal dress of heavy pampas in black and gold, with filmy lace draping the front of the costume. A velvet vest appeared between the fronts of the polonaise of pampas, open from the bosom and falling behind in a train—There was a lace fichu at the throat upon which sparkied diamonds.

"Lonengran" in Paris. Nearly the whole of an act of "Lohengrin" has at last been performed at the Grand Opera, but the trick was managed in such a way that no Chauvinistic prejudices could be hurt. It was announced that at the performance given for the benefit of M. Dumainie a duet from Wagner's opera would be sung by Mme. Caron and M. Vergnet. When the audience expected the two singers to come on in ordinary dress the con-ductor gave the signal for the orchestra to attack the first chord of the prelude

Indeed a Cemarkable Criminal

A remarkable prisoner, who calls him-self August Maler, was received at the penitentiary in Jefferson City, Mo., a few days ago on a two years' sentence from St. Genevieve county for obtaining property under false pretenses. He is probably 70 years old, and has commenced serving his eleventh term in the Missouri penitentiary. He first came here in 1836 and, with the exception of a year that he spent in jail in Illinois, he has never been out of this penitentiary but a few months at a time since. He is known at the prison as "Datch Charley." No one knows his right name or anything of his antecedents. He is a monumental liar and rarely ever tells the same story twice. He has been sentenced every time for working some kind of a confidence game, and even while in the penitentiary has plied his vocation on verdant guards and amateur detectives with more or less success.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

PASADENA'S PARK

An Improvement Suggested by a Business Man.

THE SALVATION ARMY EXCITED

Happenings - Rumored Sale of the Webster Hotel-Col. Markham Indisposed -Notes and Comment.

THE TIMES man happened to meet a group of representative citizens of Pasadena yesterday, who were discussing a subject that should be of interest to every dweller in the city who takes any pride in the welfare of the town, or who desires to see improvements made. The matter of Pasadena having a public park was being talked of. A certain prominent gentleman, especially well-known in financial circles, was advocating the establishment of such a park as a source of recreation and enjoyment to our people, to say nothing of the advertisement the city would receive from the numbers of strangers receive from the numbers of strangers who would be attracted here, especially on Sunday. His idea seemed to be to lay out a place of about two acres in as centrally located a neighborhood as possible, erect a building for a restaurant, or at least a place where a light lunch could be procured, put up a band stand and have an open-air concert every night and possibly in the afternoon.

As there is no place of the kind anywhere near Pasadena, large numbers of people who have no particular place at which to spend their evenings or Sunday afternoons, would undoubtedly come here to while away an hour or two, enjoying the music of the band or orchastra, and get supper or a light lunch. This has been tried in many places, and when it has been properly managed, has always proved a success. The gentleman named, suggested as a a means of rasing the funds necessary for carrying out the idea that the city issue bonds to pay for purchasing and and improving the ground and rent the privilege of running the restaurant, to the highest bidder.

When this was broached, another gentleman present said that, if the city would give him a license to sell liquor on the ground, he would furnish land in a suitable location put up the necessary buildings, run a restaurant and pay the city $1000 a vers in ad-land in a suitable location put up the necessary buildings, run a restaurant and pay the city $1000 a year in advance, besides seeing that the park was run in such an orderly, well-conducted manner that no one need hesitate to go there. This offer goes to show that, in the opinion of one of our shrewd business men, the scheme could be made to pay, and so it could, even though no license for sale of liquors were granted. Several desirable locations were mentioned, any of which it was thought could be obtained for such a purpose at a very reasonable figure.

veterans nor of the civil authorities before his eyes, proceeded to disturb the pious meditations of those present by conversing in an unnecessary loud voice with a companion. The stern glances of the valiant warrior, who has for some time past made life inistrable for the merchants on Colorado street by fiercely beating the big bass drum, availed naught, nor could the gently reproachful gaze of the captain of the army produce any effect other than a continuance of the unseemly disturbance. The godless youth was disturbance. The godless youth was blind to all looks and deaf to every remonstrance until finally the combined army arose in its might, and with the assistance of Pasadena's police force won a bloodless victory. The army came forth from the fray un-

NOTES AND COMMENT.

The proposal that Pasadena have a park is a good one and well worthy of serious consideration. Of course, under the existing regulations regarding the sale of liquor, there would be no use in discussing the proposal made to pay the city $1000 for a license to run such a park and sell liquor; but the sugges-tion that the Council take it in hand and construct the park, leasing the restaurant privileges, is worthy of consideration. A place of the kind, which the gentlemen who proposed it had in mind, would certainly be a lasting improvement and ornament to the city, and afford amusement to many who cannot afford, or do not have, the time to hear good music.

Whether the Webster is to be sold or not, we hope it may be opened soon by some one. The traveling public, the tourists and those who come here to spend the winter, but do not care to go spend the winter, but do not care to go so far out of town as to the Raymond or Painter, are not much concerned about the ownership of the hotel. What they want, and what they ought to have, is a first-class hotel in Pasadena, conveniently located and furnishing good rooms and food. The Webster has the advantage of being easily accessible, and it would appear that some one could be found to open it and run it as a good hotel should be run.

Our merchants have laid in their holiday goods and the stores are put ting on a gala appearance. Our people have no occasion to go elsewhere to buy holiday presents, as our home mer-chants are fully prepared to satisfy the tastes and demands of the most exacting. And then, too, we should deal with those who deal with us. If deal with those who deal with us. It a business man here wants anything done outside his line he has it done at home. When we want to buy anything we should buy it here. The more money put in circulation the better off we shall be.

It is hoped that next year the Raymond management will not adhere to the policy adopted this year of not opening until December 18. ASTHMA.

ASTHMA.

It is a common error to suppose every disease which is attended by opper-ssed breathing to be Ashma or Phthisic. We have shortness of breath in Consumption and Preumonia, just as we do in Ashma, only that in these doesas it is always pre-ent, whereas in Ashma it occurs in parox, sms.

Asthma is a spasuodic decase of the lungs, which manifests itself in periodic attacks or "n.s." It comes on suddenly and is attended wit great difficulty of breathing while it lates, he when the saw las in health. In Emphysema the expectoration is on the first property of the composition of th

It is a foolism conceit of many peopel to believe that if they have asthma they cannot get consum tion. The truth is the very opposite. They are more liable to fall into onsumption because they have the Asthma Another idea is that the Asthma itself is not a dange, our disease, and yet the outlished bils of mortality for this city prove to all who read them that great numeers lose their lives every year by this foul destroyer of our homes.

Without courage and perseverance nothing is ourable. But with those, sided by proper and skil ful treatment, Ashma can be cured even after the lungs are extensively diseased. Persons desiring treatment by this existent of practice can use the re-medies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance from business whatever. Every case of Asthma is curable. Eastern visitors and invalids will be wise in being cured before they return home.
